

CHARLESTON FOODIES

Charleston is a paradise for food lovers, with its vibrant culinary scene reflecting a mix of Southern tradition and diverse innovation. Joining a foodie group can be a fantastic way to explore the local flavors, discover hidden gems, and connect with like-minded people. Here are a few suggestions:

Facebook Groups:

Lowcountry Eat Out – A group of food loving people who are supporting restaurants through dining, recommendation, sharing + engaging with restaurants + their social media.

Chucktown Foodies - This page is for folks excited by excellent, high quality locally based food and drinks! Members share photos, tips and reviews of great food across the Lowcountry!

Post and Courier Food - All the latest in Charleston's diverse culinary scene — openings, trends, events and more.

Charleston Eats - A public group focused on the Charleston culinary scene, sharing local news, events, and discussions about food-related topics.

Instagram Pages:

Tastemakers CHS (Charleston's Culinary Social Media Club - @tastemakerschs

Charleston Foodie - @charleston_foodie

Hungry Charleston - @Hungrycharleston

Other Publications:

Eater Carolinas – This website features all of the latest and greatest foodie news across the Carolinas with an emphasis on the Charleston area.

Resy – This is the primary reservation website across the Charleston area.

Open Table – This is another reservation site, but does not include all restaurants in the Charleston area.